WHAT IF HEAVEN EXISTS AT THE SPEED OF LIGHT?

ALAN LYONS

GODSPEED

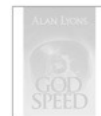

What if heaven exists at the speed of light – but the only astronaut ever to experience it can remember nothing?

Less than twenty years in the future, the world faces fuel shortages, Arab-American tensions, and new technology we don't fully understand.

Ray is the first astronaut to travel at the speed of light. A determined atheist, his worst fear is that his atoms will explode, leaving his baby sister alone in the world. Marianne, a famous spiritualist writer, has her own theories about what will happen to him – theories which turn his love to contempt. Dawn, a sharp-witted politics student, can read the danger signs of a world she desperately wants to change, but who will listen?

As the political heat rises and the war drums beat, what lies at the speed of light could change their lives – or destroy them.
